TOWN AND COUNTRY.

BREVITIES.

Matt Canavan has gone to the Bay.

Judge W. H. Beatty has returned to Sacramento.

The circus filled the town with strangers yesterday.

Hon. W. C. Grimes, of Churchill county, is in town.

The Belmont was to commence leaching ore on the 9th.

Fine soda water, and all the syrups, at Osburn & Shoemaker's.

John Bowman is reported very sick with his old trouble, asthma.

Judge Griswold and Louis Bevier were up from Wadsworth yesterday.

The Bodie Consolidated reported a cash balance of $101,463 on the 1st.

A large lot of plaques and artist materials just received at Osburn & Shoemaker's.

Mrs. W. P. A. Craig and children, of Rye Patch, came in yesterday to see the circus.

Mr. McClymonds, of the Lake House, will leave for Illinois the forepart of next week.

The circus procession yesterday was a joyous affair and fulfilled all that was advertised.

Hon. W. C. Grimes was among the delegation that came up from Churchill yesterday.

David Jones, of Beckwith, came in yesterday morning to meet some friends from the East.

County Clerk Rogers, of Elko, was in Reno yesterday. He leaves for home this morning.

It is estimated that there were over 400 people attended the circus performance last evening.

H. H. Beck managed to walk from his residence to the mill yesterday, with the aid of two canes.

The giant who accompanies Cole's circus is 7 feet, 5 1/2 inches high, and is a Kentuckian by birth.

County Clerk Osburn drops into the harness as naturally as though he hadn't been away a single day.

High Daken and family, Mrs. Frank Hastette and Mr. Cohn, of Susanville, were in town yesterday.

A. Matthy, accompanied by his widowed sister-in-law, left for his home in Illinois yesterday morning.

Dave Moffat and family and Mrs. Wilkie and children came in from Sierra Valley yesterday to see the elephant.

You will miss one of the best shows of the season if you fail to see the Bijou Opera troupe at the theater to-night.

Billy Roberts, formerly business manager for the late M. C. Lake, was among the number who traveled several hundred miles to see the elephant.

It is reported that Ed. Vesey, who is now in Montana, has taken a lease of the Lake House, and will shortly return and take charge of the property.

The weather yesterday was unusually pleasant, which enabled people from the country, and everybody else in fact, to get around and have a good time.

Alex Ardery, Master of Transportation on the V. & T., was in town yesterday, arranging for the transportation of the Circus Company to Carson and return.

Miss May Stanley, of Sacramento, who was in Reno a few months ago on a visit to the Misses Barnes, was married in Sacramento on the 13th, to E. H. Tebbets.

The Standard Consolidated has not only ceased to pay dividends, but is not producing enough ore at present to meet expenses. It reported an indebtedness of $14,800 on the 1st.

It is a remarkable fact that the Police Court was the fullest place in town yesterday. Although there was a big crowd of strangers in town the day passed without a disturbance of any kind.

The roof of the Horn building will be completed to-day. The immense arched ceiling over the hall was finished yesterday. They expect to have all the inside work completed by the first of September.

The Navajo stockholders have re-elected the old Board as follows: E. Scott, H. H. Piche, T. J. Shackleford, F. A. Berlin and John W. Pew. The mill was run 227 days during the year, milting 2,243 tons Navajo ore, the pulp assay of which was $104 per ton. The net yield was 92 per cent. of the assay.

The Big Show.

The people of Reno and surrounding country had the pleasure yesterday of witnessing the best circus and menagerie that has visited this country for many years. People expect the circus bills and posters to exaggerate the show, but all who attended the performance last evening will bear witness to the fact that W. W. Cole comes nearer presenting all the bills call for than any circus proprietor that has visited this State for years. To witness the wonderful performance of the Arab athletes is alone worth the price of admission, and yet this is but one of the many interesting and amusing features of the show. The herd of trained horses and other animals, equestrian feats, thrilling tight rope performances, and many other new and startling features, help to make it one of the grandest shows now traveling. M'le Amie, the Illumina Fly, justly deserves the name. Her feat is the most interesting of all, and she is undoubtedly the big "card." The Austin Sisters are immense on the flying trapeze, and the Livingston Brothers are splendid in their Bicycle not on the high wire. The performing lions and trained stallions are worth their weight in gold. The Russian roller skating scene is also a great attraction. The street show given prior to the exhibition in the rings is the best ever seen, and the drove of camels and elephants, twenty in number, are almost as great a sight as to see Maud S. or Jay-Eye-See go in 2.10. Samson, the largest African elephant in the world, paralyzes the children. The circus performs at Carson to-night.

The Lake Estate.

A codicil to a former will of the late M. C. Lake, made prior to the will set aside by the Court, has been found among other papers deposited for safe keeping in the Recorder's office. In this document Billy Roberts is provided for and also named as executor. The provisions made for his brothers and sister are also different from that set forth in the last will, and has a tendency to show that the old gentleman's mind was unsettled as to how his property ought to be disposed of. As the matter now stands this paper can not figure in settling the estate nor in the distribution of the property. He seems to have attempted on three different occasions to direct the distribution of his property and finally died intestate.

The Attraction To-night.

One of the very best German operas extant will be rendered in English at the Nevada Theater to-night, by the Bijou Opera House Company, consisting of 40 artists. It is a curious fact that this, the very best of Offenbach's operas, has never before been done in English in this country. Without boast or exaggeration Orpheus and Eurydice is unexcelled on the American stage to-day. It is seldom that small places like Reno have an opportunity to witness a show of that magnitude. Every one who can afford it should go. The company carry their own scenery and the display will be as elaborate as given in any of the city theaters.

Bound to See it All.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning as John Richardson was coming down town to open his place of business he ran into a gang of boys ranging from six to twelve years of age dashing down the street like a house afire. "Hello!" said John in apparent astonishment, as the boys dashed by him, "what's up; anybody killed?"

"Killed be hanged!" shouted one of the little fellows without losing a step, "why no, you old hoosier, don't you know the circus is coming!" and on they went to meet the train like a herd of scared antelope.

Personal.

The JOURNAL found an old friend serving as Treasurer of Cole's circus on this trip, it being none other than Al. E. Richards, who was Press Agent with Cole when the circus was here four years ago. He is not now connected with the circus, being the owner of an opera house at Columbus, Ohio, but is serving as Treasurer now in place of Judge Evans, who was compelled to remain East on account of sickness. The JOURNAL is glad to see Richards looking well and feeling happy.

A Marine Chronometer in Reno.

Wm. Goeggel, the enterprising watchmaker, has procured a fine ship chronometer for the purpose of regulating and adjusting his watches. The instrument is from the celebrated maker, Tobias, of London, and was purchased by Mr. Goeggel through his employers, of New York City. Mr. Goeggel will keep it stationed in his show case and the owners of fine watches can compare time very conveniently.

The New Readers.

Nasby has been appointed agent for the Sinton school readers, recently adopted by the State Board of Education. The books will be here by Monday next. The old readers, now in the hands of children, will be taken in exchange for the new ones free. A large invoice of books will be sent here so that all may be supplied.

BREVITIES.

Miss Rachel Fredrick has returned from a visit to Quincy.

Some burglars individual made an unsuccessful attempt to burglarize the Depot Hotel night before last.

Judge D. O. McKinney, of Austin, has announced that he will not be a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court against Judge Hawley.

During the excitement of circus times let no one forget that E. Meyer keeps the best imported and domestic cigars and tobacco in the market. Smokers material in endless variety.

For ventilation open your windows both at top and bottom. The fresh air runs in one way, while the foul air makes its exit the other. This is letting in your friend and expelling your enemy!

The showmen had not been in town an hour until they dropped on Geo. Becker's Pacific bear, and as a result there was a perfect ovation at the Granite saloon all day yesterday and last night.

Supt. Melville Carris and wife, W. J. McGlow and Jas. Murray, all of Austin's best, were in Reno yesterday and visited the Asylum as well as other interesting attractions of the town, not forgetting the "horse opera" last night. They leave for home to-morrow.

A correspondent of the New York World says that at a sheep ranch in Montana a lamb which had been bitten by a rattlesnake was cured by the application of baking soda. It is also usual in that vicinity to apply the same remedy to horses, and it is usually followed by complete cure. Whisky is reserved for human beings.

Mr. O. Maxwell, press agent for Cole's circus, is an affable gentleman with whom it is at all times a pleasure to meet. Mr. Maxwell has entire charge of all matters pertaining to the press, and being a thorough business man he has no difficulty in transacting his business in an agreeable and satisfactory manner.

W. F. Barry, Mr. Herriot and others who went out to prospect the country through which the N. & O. will run, returned Thursday night. The party did not make a very extended trip for the reason that Mr. Herriot and Jerry Schooning were taken quite sick and were unable to travel, which prevented them from going to Modoc or as far north as Susanville. Mr. Herriot, however, was very much pleased with what he saw of the country, and is satisfied the road will be a paying investment. He will report his views to the owners of the property, when no doubt work will be resumed.

A Boy Forever.

Old uncle John Hurst, the typical village blacksmith, who has passed his three score years and ten, footed it into town yesterday to attend the circus. Boys will be boys from the cradle to the grave. Uncle John says the man, old or young, who cannot enjoy a circus is a dangerous citizen and unfit to live in a christianian world.

Bliss's Lake Tahoe Residence.

Robert Dickson, the well-known carpenter of Virginia city, will leave next Monday for Gisbrook, Lake Tahoe, when he begins the work of constructing an elegant residence for D. L. Bliss of Carson. The residence will be one of the most elegant on the lake and will take three months to complete.

Paralyzed.

One of the employees of the circus was stricken with paralysis yesterday morning. Dr. Bergmann was called and gave such medical assistance as the occasion required, and advised the company to take the patient through to California. While the case is by no means hopeless it is a critical one.

Here is what Grover Cleveland thinks of the Grand Army of the Republic:

"While Mayor of Buffalo he vetoed an appropriation of $300 passed by the Common Council for the proper observance of Decoration Day. As Governor of New York he vetoed a bill passed at the last session of the Legislature which made it a misdemeanor for any person to wear a G. A. R. badge who was not an honorably discharged soldier. The petition for the bill had been signed by all the G. A. R. posts of the State. A measure passed the same Legislature allowing G. A. R. posts to use State muskets if they gave bonds for their return and safe keeping, and Cleveland vetoed the bill. The G. A. R. as an organization, had asked for the privilege. Grover Cleveland's fourth exploit in opposition to the Grand Army of the Republic was his veto of the bill passed by the Legislature allowing a gratuity of $1,200 to John Young, who had lost an arm in the service, was made a hopeless cripple by an accident which happened to him while working in the capitol building at Albany. All the Grand Army of the Republic posts of Albany petitioned the Legislature for the relief they extended, which Cleveland vetoed. The soldiers are asking if such a record as this will command their votes.—National Tribune.

FOR PRESIDENT.

JAS. G. BLAINE,
OF MAINE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

JOHN A. LOGAN,
OF ILLINOIS.IS THE POOR HOUSE THE VETERAN'S REWARD?

When President Lincoln issued his first call for 75,000 volunteers to protect the national capital and defend the Union, the feeling of patriotism was so thoroughly controlling the people of the Northern States that the number called for was so quickly enlisted that keen disappointment was manifested by thousands who had intended to have been of the number. With equal patriotism the first recruits for "three years of the war" enlisted. Then came the first battles and the knowledge that the men of the South were of equal physical courage as those of the North and as earnest. The war proved indeed a deadly struggle, and each Memorial Day we are reminded of its havoc as the thousands of soldiers graves are decorated with flowers by the veterans who survived its horrors. And it is not only by the graves of the fallen that we are led to contemplate the cost in blood paid to preserve the American Union from disunion. The ranks of the comrades who gather on their Memorial Day to pay the tribute of affection to the memory of those who have joined the great majority, show the maimed and the feeble, deprived of the power of self-support. They are not few. To know the story of their soldier lives is to weep over suffering and misfortune while rejoicing for country saved.

Those of us who remember the first enlistments in 1861, who recall to mind the great efforts made by the several States later on to fill their quotas of troops, and the draft that came at last, also remember the profuse promises made, official and unofficial, to encourage enlistments. How many times since Lee's surrender has the question been asked whether those promises had been faithfully kept. For how many years were the legless and armless heroes in their fading army blue conspicuous nomads, found in the city and village streets, presenting to the passer-by the certificate of honorable service and discharge with the appeal for assistance. They had sacrificed on the altar of country their God-given power to work for a living, and now were beggars. That these helpless soldiers were entitled to the best care that the Government which they had sacrificed so much to preserve could give them, the hardest hearted miser of the time acknowledged. Many of these men had no one but the government and the public to look to for assistance by which with a meagre pension they could pay their way in the busy world. Many of them were not qualified for the civil service promised the soldier, though excellent workmen at their trades before the war had torn from them their limbs or shattered their constitutions to disease.

There was a desire on the part of those who saw them and whose promises to the soldiers during the struggle had been unofficial, to see some provision made by the general Government whereby these men could be cared for. Public sentiment said, build Soldiers' Homes, and institutions bearing the title have been established. There are three, we believe, under the exclusive control of the general Government, one at Fergus, Mo., one at Dayton, Ohio, and a third at Milwaukee, Wis. Concerning the management of each of them there has been more or less complaint, but those at Dayton and Milwaukee have won from inmates from time to time the appellation of "National Soldier's Hell." No bitter has grown the complaint of management that during the recent session of Congress a committee was appointed for the purpose of investigation. We have no knowledge at this writing when this committee is to meet, and recall the fact of its appointment by a report in one of the Milwaukee papers that the poor houses in that part of the country have been filling up with veteran soldiers who prefer the poor house to the homes provided by the Government under their existing tyrannical and otherwise shameful management. These homes have been described as fine buildings, such as would in appearance gratify the pride of an American citizen who knew nothing of the suffering within. The soldier of the civil war has become accustomed to being victimized by pension agents and politicians, but Congress should surely be able to guarantee him justice and comfort in the homes it invites him on behalf of the people to accept.

That the poor house is a paradise for these helpless heroes as compared to the government homes, is a disgrace to the government which is paying out millions of dollars in pensions to men who can earn as good a living as ever they could and are not obliged to depend upon the government or common charity for their needs. The Grand Army of the Republic should investigate the management of these homes, especially those of Dayton and Milwaukee, and let its influence be felt in their suffering comrades' behalf. For the honor of the government we hope the Congressmen to visit these "Homes" this Summer, will be thorough in their work and have every inmate bear witness. The Republican party claims the soldiers' honors and a Republican administration should see that its veteran wards in these Homes get what they are entitled to, which seems to us quite doubtful from the report that the Governor of the Milwaukee homes claims to have brought the cost of support down to $3.80 per month per man. These figures alone show that a whitewash report is not in order.

MONEY-SPENDING OFFICE-SEEKERS.

One of two things in our political system is radically wrong. Either we pay our officers too high salaries, or else the means used in obtaining official positions is not justified by a righteous end. When we see a candidate spend half or nearly so of his prospective salary, as a means to obtain that official position, every sane man immediately concludes that either the salary attached to the position is double what it ought to be, or else the would-be official expects to increase the emoluments thereof in a manner to the public unknown. If it is evident that the salary is not excessive the conclusion is forced upon the minds of intelligent citizens that the candidate is dishonest. The conclusion is rational and the act of spending more money than the amount of salary attached thereto, admits of no other construction. Is it not surprising that defalcations are so numerous among our public officials, and that charges of corruption and a betrayal of the trust delegated to our judges, our legislators, and ministerial officers and generally for no other motive than to gain riches; and when you see a man deliberately lavishing his money upon that he intends to get his expenditure back with big interest. Look out for such men and thwart their plans. Their presence is an official position bodes no good for the people. The people will find in him another Judas. Slay him politically at the first opportunity.

The above, from a reputable paper will probably be accepted by the average newspaper reader as embodying high moral ideas. Theoretically the propositions therein advanced, are correct. There is no reason why a nominee for an office should, as the Leader suggests, "spend half or nearly so, of his prospective salary" to secure the position, and yet he is compelled to do it.

The people expect candidates to come among them and spend money. The candidate for Sheriff of Sierra County who stayed at home and paid no attention to the canvass would have undoubtedly been left, while the candidate who went around among the boys would have been elected. The people demand that candidates shall spend money in politics, and all pretensions to the contrary are mere humbug. The long and short of it is that the people have to pay for their own folly in the end.

The exhumation of the body of Lieutenant Kinsbury seems to show that the survivors of the Greeley expedition were compelled to resort to cannibalism to preserve their own lives. Upon this showing some newspapers are insisting upon an "investigation," which simply means a trial of the survivors. Committed without provocation or the excuse of necessity, their act would have been a crime, but under the circumstances it was manifestly excusable. It is to be hoped that we shall not be afflicted with recitals of the sickening details. The relatives of the dead Lieutenant evince a disposition to create a scandal, but it is to be hoped that a sober second thought will convince them of the folly of pursuing such a course. They should take warning by the experience of the Collins family who sought to fasten a stigma on the memory of DeLong, of the Jeannette expedition, but only succeeded in bringing to light some disagreeable facts concerning their dead relative which otherwise would have remained comparatively unknown. Only one good purpose can be subserved by the exposure of these alleged horrors, and that is the preventing of other brave and good men from joining future Arctic expeditions.

The Democratic papers throughout the land are asserting that Chairman Jones, of the Republican National Committee, has declared that the carrying of Indiana was only "a financial proposition." The Democratic organs go into convulsions over the charge, which, when thoroughly analyzed, simply means that there are enough Democrats in Indiana who will sell their votes to change the vote of the State. The Democrats of Indiana are evidently prepared to trade.

The full particulars of the Morey letter forgery have been published by John I. Davenport, and a brief synopsis of the facts will be found in another column. There is nothing especially new in the exposure, since the circumstances under which the forgery was committed, and the names of the participants and the several parts which they played have for a long time been familiar to the public. The telegraphed synopsis relates entirely to the forgery itself and makes no mention of the part which the National Democratic Committee or its Chairman, Mr. Barium, took in the business. The book no doubt makes disclosures which will be very unpalatable to the Democracy.

The Sun's Washington special says the Republicans are colonizing negroes in West Virginia by the carload to vote for Blaine. A prominent Democrat said: "The tactics of the Republican managers in the State are to bribe and corrupt the voters and the feeling against Elkins is so great that it would probably be unsafe for him to show himself in the State. The Democrats will have no easy job to carry the State and must use as much money as the Republicans."

Tragic Sequel of a Famous St. Louis Sensation.

St. Louis, August 15.—Russell H. Tevis, who shot and seriously wounded Frank T. Iglehart two years ago for too intimate relations with his wife, went to his home, 2,845 St. Louis avenue, about 10 o'clock to-night, and had some angry words with his wife, remarking that he thought it better for them all to die, evidently meaning himself, wife and child. He took a large pistol from the washstand drawer and made a demonstration towards his wife. She, divining his purpose, fled hastily from the room. Tevis then placed the pistol to his own head and sent a thirty-eight caliber bullet into his brain falling dead upon the floor. Mrs. Tevis is suffering from hysterics, and her physician will not allow reporters to see her. Tevis bought out his business partner to-day, and had been drinking to-night and was in a highly nervous and excited condition before he went home. He was thirty-two years of age, and of a very nervous temperament. His wife is a daughter of General Reese, of the United States Army, and was involved in an unfortunate affair with young Iglehart two years ago, for which her husband obtained a divorce, but some months later they met in Chicago, became reconciled, were remarried and have since been living together.

The American Alliance.

Boston, August 14.—Captain Ellsworth, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Political Alliance, said to-day that the membership of the order was more than 475,000. General Grant is proposed as its candidate for President. Captain Ellsworth says: "Though he has not as yet sent us his official acceptance, we feel sure, as he has not declined the honor and from private advices, that he will run." General Fremont is expected to accept the nomination of Vice President. When asked if the alliance had any connection with the old Know-Nothing party, Captain Ellsworth said: "Yes, sir, it has. Its platform is the adoption of the Know-Nothing belief in its broadest sense. It believes in 'America for Americans only,' and condemns the elevation of any foreigner to the dignity of an office." The interview further developed the fact that the alliance was formed in 1871. In 1876 its influence was thrown for Hayes, but in 1880 its members were allowed their choice of either candidate of the other parties. The Captain is sanguine in his expectations for this Fall, claiming Louisiana, Maryland, Florida and possibly Virginia.

Indian Commissioner Price to Resign.

Rumors of the resignation of Indian Commissioner Price have been rife for several days, and it is said, on good authority, that the resignation was tendered to Secretary Teller before that gentleman left for the West. Various reasons are assigned for Mr. Price's determination to give up the office he has filled for several years. His wife's health, which will not permit of her residing in Washington, is thought to be the true reason, though it is said that he transfer of the Indian bureau headquarters in the Interior Department building, against the protest of Mr. Price, was what caused him to resign. Mr. Price was formerly a member of Congress, and served on the Indian Affairs Committee and gave the Indian question deep study. He is a member of the Society of Friends, a denomination which has always taken deep interest in the Indians. He was appointed under President Garfield, and his administration of the office has been very satisfactory.

The campaign in this State is dragging its slow length along, and will probably continue to do so until after the Republican State Convention. Present appearances in fact indicate that it will not be a very gushing campaign upon either side this year. (Tuscarora Times-Review.)

THE MOREY LETTER.

The Famous Forgery Exposed and Last by John I. Davenport.

New York, August 15.—The long delayed expose by United States Commissioner John I. Davenport, of the Morey letter, will be published to-morrow morning. It makes a book of 150 pages. It is largely made up of fac-similes of documents showing the forgery in various forms. The narrative is only a brief part of the whole volume. The book sets forth that the person who actually penned the forged Morey letter was a lawyer of this city named Henry H. Hadley. Davenport describes him as a manipulator of insurance, companies of doubtful character and of other matters equally precarious, with an innate love of intrigue and a craving for notoriety, and an unconquerable desire to dip into politics and to correspond with public men. He quotes from his letters to show that he always was a Democrat, though at the time of the commission of the forgery he was Secretary of the Hancock Republican Association, in the rooms of which the forgery was committed, on or about October 2, 1880. The forgery, according to Hadley's admission and the confirmatory evidence collected by Davenport, was originally in the form of an extract from a supposed interview with General Garfield. Davenport possessed himself of about 1,000 letters written by Hadley between 1870 and 1879, and finds all the distinctive marks of the orthography and calligraphy alike in them and the forged letter. Hadley always misspelled the word "religiously" as it was spelled in the forged letter, and all nouns ending in "ies," such as companies, copies, enemies, he spelled with the final "ys," as the word "companies" appears in the forged letter. In his genuine correspondence Hadley invariably dotted the letter "i" when it occurred in a word containing an "i," as in the signature to the forged letter. A hundred fac-simile reproductions prove this conclusively. It was on the display of this evidence of his guilt that Hadley confessed his part in the crime. Hadley admits he wrote the name of Henry L. Morey in the register of the Kirkland House, Lynn, and substituted it for the name of George E. C. Morey in an affidavit of Mrs. Clara Morey, declaring he was her son. These forgeries were made to sustain the original forgery. There was no such man as H. L. Morey, to whom the forged letters were supposed to have been written, nor was there any such person as J. W. Goodall, who claimed to be executor to H. L. Morey, and who transmitted the forged letter to Truth. Hadley wrote the Goodall letters also. Davenport also says that a week or ten days before the publication in Truth of the Morey letter Charles A. Dana, of the New York Sun, was told that such a letter was in existence, and upon his expressing a doubt thereof, his informant assured him such was the case, and that he believed he could obtain it and show it to him (Dana). To this Mr. Dana replied that he did not care to see it, for the reason that he believed if any such letter was in existence it was a forgery, and he wished to have nothing to do with it. Lindsley, like Morey, was a fictitious person, and the man O'Brien who impersonated him on Philip's examination was arrested for forgery, confessed and is now serving a term in Sing Sing Prison for that offense. The language of the Morey letter is shown to have been culled from speeches of Cutler, of New Jersey; Williams, of Wisconsin; Phelps, of Kansas; Lattrell, of California, and others on the Chinese bill and from the testimony of Henry George and others before the House Committee on Chinese Immigration, and in no sense are extracts from Garfield's writing. A copy of the account of Garfield with the Stationary Clerk of the House for the session from March 21 to December 23, 1879, shows Garfield never used paper with the peculiar heading of the sheet on which the forged letter was written, and that that style of paper was never issued except during the time indicated.

The Campaign in Maine.

The Sun's Augusta (Me.) special says: The Republicans of this State have practically completed all the details of their canvass. They expect 10,000 majority, but they will be content with 8,000; if they get over 10,000 they will go wild. The Democrats concede 6,000; they will work to cut down the majority. Blaine does not intend to leave Maine during the campaign. He said yesterday that he expected to have the second volume of his book completed by the time the snow flies.

A Leading Greenbacker for Blaine.

Solon Chase, the eminent Maine Greenbacker, comes out for Blaine. He says: "He will be the first President of the United States taken from civil life who was not bred a lawyer. I believe him to be a great American commoner and a friend of the great army of wealth producers and one in whose policy they can safely confide."

THE PRINCE OF BACCARAT.

A Fast Young New Yorker Swimming in Wealth.

[New York Cor. Observer.]

Billy Deutsch has struck luck again. He is swimming in wealth in Paris, and is again famous as the "Prince of Baccarat." Few men are better known among fast New Yorkers than Billy Deutsch. He is a handsome man of about 28 years. About five years ago he was a clerk in a downtown drygoods store at $20 a week. His tendencies toward a fast life were strongly marked, and he achieved a small reputation as a poker-player, even on his small income. One day his uncle died, leaving Billy Deutsch $6,000. It was not a great sum, but was enough to satisfy the young man for the time being. He left his position, went on a bender for a night or two, and then played roulette at Murray's place in Twenty-eighth street. He won enough to make his capital $10,000, when he started for Europe two days later. At that time the game of baccarat was just becoming popular in New York. It was imported from France. The game is the most popular of all table games now, not excepting faro. Billy Deutsch had a theory about playing baccarat. He reduced it to a system and went direct to Paris. When he arrived he made a "plunge" with his whole $10,000 at the biggest gambling house in Paris, was a winner to the extent of $80,000, broke the bank at 4 o'clock in the morning, and awoke the next morning to find all Paris talking about him. The papers dubbed him the "Prince of Baccarat." The young American had such extraordinary luck that the gambling places in Paris refused to allow him to play at their tables after a time, and he returned at the expiration of two years to New York. Meanwhile he had travelled all over Europe with a caravan of friends, parasites, and sycophants. When he returned to America he had changed wonderfully. He was arrogant, snobbish, dictatorial, and worth considerably more than half a million dollars. He went back to Paris a little less than two years ago, and in a month the news came over the water that Billy Deutsch had squandered all of his fortune at baccarat, and was penniless. He struggled along in poverty until a month ago, when he "struck a winner" again. Deutsch is a desperate gambler, and if he wins at all he wins big sums. In this case—I am told by a buyer for a big lace house in New York who had just returned from Paris and who saw Deutsch's strike—Deutsch played his usual game. He had, somehow or other, got $100 together in 500-franc notes. He placed the note on the table and waited for the cards. He caught a natural and left the whole sum—now 1,000 francs—on the table. It won again. He left it once more and made another winning. Everybody watched him, and the banker asked if he intended to risk his whole fortune again. Billy Deutsch nodded, and, as luck would have it, he won again, and found himself worth 8,000 francs—all won within ten minutes. One or two of his friends begged him to withdraw the major part of his winnings, but the American said he would have 16,000 francs or nothing. Fortune, which had scowled on him so long, smiled again, and he left the game with his 16,000 francs. Then he began to play again as of old, and it is said that he is again a wealthy man.

Extravagance and Crime.

Extravagances account for the positive crimes, the forgeries, and the abscondings of the officers of the banks. The store on Broadway and the office on Wall street swamped by the residence on Madison square. The father's, the husband's craft capsize by carrying too much domestic sail. That is what springs that leak in the merchant's money-bill. That is what cracks the pistols of suicide. That is what tears down Marine banks. That is what stops insurance companies. That is what baits this nation again and again in its triumphal march of prosperity. Look at the one fact that it is a matter of solid statistics that this country, in the cities of New York and Brooklyn—I will narrow it down—it is estimated that there are now over five thousand women whose apparel costs them over two thousand dollars a year each. Things have got to such a pass that when we cry over our sins in church, we wipe the tears away with a one hundred and fifty dollar pocket handkerchief! Here is a domestic tragedy in five acts: Act the First—A home plain and beautiful. Enter newly-married pair. Enter contentment. Enter as much happiness as ever gets in one home. Act the Second—Enter discontent. Enter desire for larger expenditure. Enter envy. Enter jealousy. Act the Third—Enter the queenly dressmakers. Enter the French milliners. Enter all costly plate and all great extravagance. Act the Fourth. Tip-top of society. Princess and princesses of New York and Brooklyn floating in and out. Everything on a large and magnificent scale. Enter contempt for other people. Act the Fifth and last. Enter the assignee. Enter the sheriff. Enter the creditors. Enter humiliation. Enter the wrath of God. Enter the contempt of society. Enter Death and Hell. Now, drop the silk curtain. The farce is ended and the lights are out. I called it a tragedy. This is a misnomer. It is a farce.—Dr. Talmage, in Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for September.

A few years ago W. J. Smith, the present postmaster at Eureka, had an autograph letter from Ben Butler in which the letter said in effect that he knew no moral or constitutional reason why a Chinaman could not or should not become a naturalized citizen of the United States. Now that Benjamin is squarely before the people as a Presidential candidate it might be interesting to the voters to know whether or not his later moral and constitutional researches have changed his opinion on that subject. (Tuscarora Times-Review.)

DEMOCRATIC SUPREMACY.

Murat Halstead Tells What That Would Mean for Us.

Halstead telegraphs from New York to his paper these reflections: Some dissent has been expressed concerning the remark that the Presidential contest this year is not for the control of the Government for one term of four years only, but that it will determine the character of a series of administrations extending, perhaps, through as much time as has elapsed since the election of Abraham Lincoln. It would be advantageous to have the people consider the proposition with particular care. It is, in the first place, that with an administration such as the choice of Blaine would secure, the country would become reliably Republican. The solid South would be irretrievably broken up. An arch of new States from Lake Superior to the Pacific ocean, would appear, and the nation would be strengthened and glorified. On the other hand, if the Democrats win, they will add to their 153 Southern electoral votes two States representing Mexicanism and Mormonism—New Mexico and Utah—and the whole civil service army will be used with relentless despotism in the service of the party, and taxed and disciplined accordingly, and where there has been one dollar made unscrupulously by ringsters professing Republicanism the Democratic rings will get $10 for the jobbery of which the nation, as they would manage it, is susceptible. Each grant Democratic city with a garrison of federal office-holders, will be strengthened for works not good, and the combined forces would hold the forts for the bonanzas contained in them for an indefinite period. It is into this promised land of fraud and violence perpetrating each other that those who are abusing the very name of reformers are leading. It is well that their footsteps falter. There is a statement in circulation, though it has not had much newspaper publication, that several of our friends who believe themselves to be of the reform school, and who have appeared by stress of circumstances to be the supporters of Cleveland, have been chilled by the nature of the task that they had proposed to assume. There was no reference to them in the Cleveland and Hendricks notification and ratification speeches. The fact is uppermost again that there is no room in the Democratic party for any one who cares how the public business is transacted, or hopes for betterment of the civil service. The attempts to play reformer with Democratic machinery are preposterous, and the effort to boom Grover Cleveland as a spotless and mighty statesman, wonderfully pure and unprecedented in this generation in goodness, is dramatically grotesque. It is a burlesque upon American humor.

PYRAMID LAKE.

Soldiers Driving Settlers Off of the Reservation.

Acting under orders from the War Department, Lieut. Huntington, with a squad of cavalry from Fort Bidwell, is now at the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation ejecting settlers and all persons who have no right to be there. This movement has been in contemplation for a long time, and will prove of great injury to many innocent and honest people, without any material benefit to the Indians.

Leon & Cushman's Minstrels.

Leon & Cushman's Minstrel Comedy Company, of the Bush street Theater, San Francisco, will appear at the Nevada Theater next Saturday night, August 23d, in a new comedy satire of high and low colored city life, entitled, "Sarah Barnum's Dilemma." It consists of burlesques and good specialty acts, and is quite a pleasant diversion from the conventional entertainments given by minstrel companies. The list of artists includes a number of the most famous of the Pacific Coast favorites, such as Cushman, Leon, Casey and others.

The theater was well filled last evening and the expression was unanimous that the show was very entertaining. The solos and choruses were actually good, to say nothing of the attractions presented by the rounded outlines of the agile actresses, whose frolicsome movements half bewildered the venerable of the front seat. Cupid was a little daisy, while Diana was a lovely form. Old Jupiter got off some very good local hits.

Over 200 Piate Indians formed a procession at Winnemucca and marched to the circus grounds and requested to be admitted at half a dollar each. The Manager refused to accept the offer and the Indians saved their $100 by staying away from the show.

A Slight Mistake.

"There is one portion of the circus business the Carson people will fail to see," said a countryman to a friend on the street yesterday morning.

"Why so?" enquired his friend.

"Well, because they went away last night and left one of their principal attractions."

"You don't say so! What was it?"

The little man, I guess he was so small they overlooked him."

"I guess you are mistaken about that. Where did you see him?"

"Down here at the corner."

"What corner?"

"Right down here next to Rube's butcher shop."

"Nonsense!"

But you the cigars."

"I'll take it."

At this the two started up the street, followed by Chamberlain, Frazier and others who heard the conversation. They halted in front of Gallatin & Folsom's store, and remained gazing intently at some object inside. Presently the gentlemanly proprietor, Mr. Folsom, approached them in the most polite manner possible. "Good morning, gentlemen, anything we can do for you?"

"No, I guess not. Do you belong here?"

"I do."

"How long since?"

"Oh, I moved down here from Gold Hill over two years ago."

"The devil you say!"

"Yes, sir, that's a fact."

"Well, I declare! That lets me out. I thought you were the little man I saw in the circus."
